COVINA TO CELEBRATE FOURTH OF JULY

CITY AWARDED $3441 FROM GASOLINE TAX

State Department of Public Works to Pay Amount

Covina and other cities throughout Los Angeles county were paid a substantial part of the $5,291,693 apportioned by the state in gasoline tax revenue during the two-year period ending June 30, 1935, according to a compilation prepared by the state department of public works.

This city received a total of $3441, representing the revenue derived from a quarter-cent tax, apportioned on the basis of population by the 1930 federal census. Los Angeles city overshadowed all cities in the state as well as the county, by reason of its population being credited with $1,538,669 during the biennium. Gasoline tax money is allocated to municipalities by a legislative act of 1933, for expenditure upon state highways and city streets within incorporated cities, according to department officials. The money has been used to some extent for maintenance of state highway routes and other city streets within cities, but most of it has been spent on improvement of main thoroughfares.

Some cities, where funds were insufficient for immediate accomplishment of improvements, have undertaken the work by stages, with right of way acquisition as the initial project.

Following are the amounts received by some of the other cities in this area: West Covina, $953; Glendora, $3425; Azusa, $5964; Pomona, $25,807.

Fire Department in Regular Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Covina fire department was held Monday evening in the firemen's room at the city hall, with a steak dinner preceding the gathering. The dinner was prepared by George Haynes, Harry Snodgrass, and Barney Dial. On account of the absence of Chief Frank Kendall, little business was considered aside from the report of the annual ball which was held at the high school gym last week, the dance being one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the season.

Rotarians Return From Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Thorpe and Ellsworth A. Cooper returned Tuesday morning from a trip to the City of Mexico on the Rotary special train, which was parked in Pullman City in the railroad yards at Mexico City during the Rotary international convention.

The convention was in session only a few hours each forenoon, giving the visitors considerable (but not ample) time in which to see this very interesting city and its many attractive environments.

Deputies Appointed to Register Voters

Appointment of two local residents to take registrations in Covina was announced this week by W. M. Kerr, registrar of voters. The deputies are Lottie M. Merwin, 236 West College street, and Mary Forbes, 323 Italia street.

Mrs. Merwin is taking registrations for precincts Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and West Covina precincts Nos. 1 and 2. Mrs. Forbes has precincts Nos. 1 and 2, and also Charter Oak precincts.

IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Frank Thayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Whitel of Natividad Place, is a patient at the Community hospital, Long Beach. Mrs. Thayer, a teacher in the Long Beach schools, was taken suddenly ill on Monday and following a consultation of physicians was operated on for intestinal disturbance early Wednesday morning.

Early Resident Here Passes On After Active Life

The death occurred this week at the Good Samaritan hospital, Los Angeles, of Guy E. Adams, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Adams of this city. The deceased, who has been making his home in Los Angeles for a number of years, had recently retired following years of active service as purchasing agent for the Union Pacific railroad, with offices in Los Angeles.

The Adams family was prominent in the Covina district during the early history of its development, the late J. H. Adams owning the property now the city park and the residential subdivision of twenty-five acres adjoining.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday in the Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn Memorial park in Glendale. Interment followed in the Vale of Memory at Forest Lawn.

Mr. Adams, fifty-five years of age at the time of his death, was born in Deadwood, South Dakota, moving with the family to Covina in 1888. He leaves one brother, R. H. Adams, of 2502 Ninth avenue, Los Angeles, and two sisters, Mrs. Olga Renick of Glendale, and Mrs. Bertha Eckert of Encinitas, California.

Bible School Sets Attendance Record

The two-hundred mark was reached in the attendance at the daily vacation Bible school this week, with the average daily attendance well above 150. Mrs. Ella Patter, head of the school, reports that this has been the most successful vacation school since the movement was started several years ago. The school will continue until July 3, with a program Sunday evening, July 7.

Lions Club Installs New Officers for Year

Wives of the members of the Lions club were guests at a 6 o'clock dinner meeting at Masonic hall on Wednesday evening, with installation of the new officers of the organization following.

Bill Evans was toastmaster of the evening, introducing Virgil Truman of the Pasadena junior college and president of the Pasadena Lions club, the guest speaker of the evening. Mr. Truman gave an address on "Lionism and Its Relation to Modern Times," stressing the high ideals of service for which Lionism stands and pointing out the good that has been done by clubs throughout the world in helping others and in bringing a closer feeling of fellowship among its members.

In the installation that followed, those who are to serve for the coming year were inducted into office: Charles Ham, secretary; Bill Evans, treasurer; George Ross, tall twister; Guy Harris, Lion tamer; Bob Estep and Jimmie Hodges, new board members; first vice-president, Bill Edgett; second vice-president, John Tallman; third vice-president, Dean Fesler; and president, Ben Jenks.

President Jenks, in accepting the honor given him, outlined his plans for the coming year and made a strong appeal to the members to make this the greatest year in the history of the local Lions, especially in service to be rendered to the community thru the work of the club. At the conclusion of his talk he presented the outgoing president, Jimmie Hodges, with a Gladstone bag in appreciation by the members for his service during his term of office. Secretary Charles Ham also presented Mr. Hodges with the past-president's pin.

Chevrans were presented to ten charter members of the club, five of whom were present Wednesday evening—Eugene McVitt, Gilbert Nigg, Ben Jenks, Bill Evans, and Tom Reed. Others who were not present but who will receive the chevrons later are Gene Christiansen, Edwin Jobe, Ashbury Longworth, Claude W. Searcy, and Tom Finch.

During the past year there has been a small collection taken at each meeting in preparation for the expenses of some member of the club to the international convention in Mexico City. The fund, which was $200, was to go by drawing to some member if he attended the convention, and if he could not attend he would receive $50, the balance to go into the club fund and part of it to be divided among those who attend the convention. Glen Kite received the award, but as he cannot go as a delegate he was given the fifty dollars.

Smith Association Meets at City Park

The largest attendance in the history of the William and Martha Smith association of southern California marked the annual reunion of the Smith descendants at the Covina city park last Sunday, with members of the family from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Ventura, Brentwood, Norwalk, Pomona, Ontario, Elsinore, and other cities present.

Following the picnic dinner the annual meeting was held, Wilbur E. Warr, Covina, being elected president; John W. Clanton, Norwalk, vice-president; and Bessie G. Rouse, Los Angeles, secretary. The 1936 meeting will be held at Fullerton park, with an exhibit of early family photographs to be one of the features.

SEWER PLANS LAID BEFORE STATE HEADS

Mayor, Councilmen Interview Governor and Legislators

Mayor George Maxfield and Councilmen Frank Kendall, John Koch and Louis Hodges spent the early part of this week in Sacramento, where they presented to Governor Merriam and other state officials the claims for a permit to be issued to the city for the erection of a sewage disposal plant on the tract owned by the city two miles southwest of Baldwin Park.

Decision on the completion of the disposal plant will probably be reached this week, when the state board of health is expected to meet in Los Angeles for the second hearing on the project, to review protests, and consider rebuttals that have been filed by Covina city officials.

During the past week letters have been sent to the state board by the chamber of commerce, Lions club, Rotary club, the city planning commission, and the merchants' division of the chamber of commerce, as well as many individual letters, asking that the board give consideration to the urgent need of an outlet for the sewage system recently completed and which is now useless, and will be until a disposal plant can be erected.

The fact that untreated sewage is now saturating the ground in the city and that there is great danger to the health of the community, was stressed in all these communications to the board. The fact that the federal government has allocated $136,000 for the project, if work is started at once, in order to provide work for unemployed men, is also expected to have considerable weight with the board.

Several hundred protests, together with a petition from Baldwin Park bearing more than seven hundred names, have been filed with the state board. Most of these protests object to the building of the plant on the grounds that it will tend to lower property values. Competent sewage engineers, however, have expressed the opinion that all such objectionable features have been eliminated in the plans for the plant as prepared by Alva Smith, Covina city engineer. All odors, the engineers state, will be consumed in the plant and the water that remains after the sewage treatment will be chlorinated so that there will be no danger of contamination.

Alpha Beta Store to Move Stock to New Building

Saturday will be the last day of the Alpha Beta market in its present location. Monday the stock and fixtures will be moved to the double store room next door, where the Cornet building has been completely remodeled to give the Alpha Beta organization one of the finest super-markets in this section of the state.

In preparation for removal the store is putting on a special sale today and Saturday, as will be shown by reference to its ad in this issue of the Argus. The formal opening of the new market will be held at a date to be announced later, but business in the new location will go on as usual until that time.

Work on remodeling the room now occupied by the market will be started as soon as the Alpha Beta fixtures are removed, according to Joe Cornet, who will reopen his 5, 10 and 25-cent store in this location as soon as alterations are completed.

TOWNSEND MEETING

Tonight a meeting is scheduled to be held at the grammar school auditorium at 7:30, sponsored by Covina Townsend club. Hal Stemons of Arcadia will be the speaker of the evening. A program has been arranged and statters concerning the local club members will be discussed.

Rotary Luncheon Marks End of Administration

Yesterday's Rotary luncheon marked the close of the administration of President Clyde Custer, a year that has been featured not only by steady growth in membership of the local organization, but also in all lines of Rotary activity.

One of the club's highlights for the year came in the nature of the president's report, which was accompanied by a souvenir booklet of forty pages, containing a brief history of the club since its organization and a complete illustrated summary of its activities during the year 1934-1935. A copy of this unique brochure was presented to each member of the club by the retiring president, which will be appreciated from the fact that it was the giver's own handiwork.

The last page of the book contains President Clyde's valedictory letter. It reads as follows:

"As the end of the Rotary year draws near I look back on the past months, remembering all of those pleasant experiences I have had as your president.

"My duties thru the years have been very enjoyable ones. It has been a decided pleasure and sense of satisfaction to serve and work with and for you. The splendid feeling of cooperation, motivated by your fine Rotary spirit, has made the job a light one and in no sense a burden.

"I want to thank each one of you for this support. Thanks to those who have so willingly undertaken and carried to completion the jobs given them and those who would have done more if they had only been given the opportunity.

"Thanks to you for bestowing upon me the greatest honor granted to any citizen of this community.

Sincerely and Rotarily,
CLYDE.

Preceding the president's address, Rotarian Ben F. Thorpe furnished the club with a ten-minute talk on his impressions of the Rotary international convention in Mexico City, from which he returned on Monday.

SERA Sewing Rooms Moved to School Building

Because the federal building inspectors condemned the use of the Coolman building, Second street, as a serious fire hazard for the thirty to fifty women workers on the second floor, some other location for a sewing unit had to be found. William Hoogenadyk, chairman of the special committee, contacted the members of the grammar school and secured, for two months, the use of the Home Economic building, corner of Second street and Covina boulevard, which is well adapted for the purpose.

Three officials from the Los Angeles and Pasadena SERA offices have been thoroughly inspected the building and are well pleased with the conveniences it contains. Yesterday (Thursday) twenty or more sewing machines, with a quantity of unmade material, was moved over from Azusa, and regular work will be begun next Monday morning. Twenty Baldwin Park women, who have been working at the Montevia center, will be transferred here, for transportation reasons. This will make eighty women of the vicinity sewing at the Covina center, in two and three shifts.

Mrs. Lenore Spencer, of Pasadena, is in general charge, with Mrs. Tice, of Altadena, local supervisor. Yesterday (Thursday) twenty or more sewing machines, with a quantity of unmade material, was moved over from Azusa, and regular work will be begun next Monday morning. Twenty Baldwin Park women, who have been working at the Montevia center, will be transferred here, for transportation reasons. Brethren Church Celebrates Golden Anniversary

Members of the Brethren church from all over southern California on Sunday gathered in Covina to participate in the services commemorating the golden anniversary of the organization of the local church.

The jubilee service commenced at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the seating capacity of the church being supplemented by the Sunday-school room and parlors, to provide accommodation for the overflowing congregation. These exercises were presided over by the Rev. S. W. Funk, who has long been associated with the church.

Following the singing by the congregation of old-fashioned songs, led by D. A. Fesler, the church history, prepared by Mrs. Bulalia Overholzer, was read by the author. Dewey Finch, a charter member, told of some of the events leading up to the organization of the church. Felix Hess, another charter member, related in a pleasing way many of the human-interest incidents of the early days of the local church, and the reminiscences of Mrs. Della Lehmer were thoroughly enjoyed by the congregation.

An address entitled "A Backward Look," by Rev. William Platt, reviewed the spiritual and social life of the church. Several other short talks were given by older members of the congregation, including Mrs. Maggie Boots, W. H. Wertenbaker, H. M. Brubaker, and others. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Stella Missildine Bartholemew. Letters of congratulation were read from former pastors, including one from the pastor, Rev. Leland S. Brubaker. In the morning the music was furnished by the Miss Ollie Jones violin ensemble, with Miss Miriam Stover as vocal soloist. The Apollo quartet sang in the evening.

To accommodate the large outpouring of visitors and members, a picnic lunch was arranged at the noon hour on the lawn of the high school grounds which adjoin the church, tables being erected and chairs provided. Over 750 participated in this part of the day's program.

During the morning and evening services, Dr. D. W. Kurtz, nationally known for his eloquence, occupied the pulpit, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Leland S. Brubaker. In the morning the music was furnished by the Miss Ollie Jones violin ensemble, with Miss Miriam Stover as vocal soloist. The Apollo quartet sang in the evening.

Legionnaires Hold Entertainment

With Sam Stead acting as master of ceremonies, the American Legion party Monday evening at the Legion clubhouse became one of entertainment and pleasure from the opening number on the program, which started with a comic song by everyone present. Jack Springer's Hillbillies, from radio station KFWE, gave a number of songs and musical numbers that were well received, and the Jackson twins, members of Hovey Cook's Millionaire Kids, who were guests of the evening, gave a dance.

Miss Eva D. Edwards was refreshment hostess for the evening, and after reminiscing with the ex-soldiers on the familiar scenes at the front, she brought memories closer by serving in the old army style as she did in her work in the Y cafternoon during her months at the front.

Athletic contests will occupy much of the time on the program, but there will also be an interesting program in the afternoon, with Mayor George Maxfield giving the address of welcome and Rev. Harry G. Earle as the speaker of the day. Guy Harris is the general chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration.

Dwight Hutchinson, winner of the American Legion oratorical contest, will present the oration that brought him the winning decision, and there will be music during the part of the day's festivities, which will be held at the bandstand at 2:30.

Water sports, with awards for proficiency, will be one of the features of the celebration and the official program which appears in this issue of the Argus shows that every form of outdoor sport that can be staged in the park has been provided for, including the baseball game at 3:15 between the Lions and the Rotarians.

The fireworks display at 8 o'clock will close the celebration in the park. The display has been selected with a view to giving as varied an array as possible, with clusters and color-exploding bombs predominating.

At 9 o'clock the dance will start at the high school gym, with Paul Leonard's ten-piece orchestra from Long Beach furnishing the music.

Echo Bowl Concerts to Open Monday

Next Monday evening will inaugurate the opening of the second season of symphony concerts in Lark Ellen Echo bowl—said to be the most notable musical event of the year for this locality.

These concerts proved so popular last year that there is little question of their becoming an annual occurrence. The orchestral numbers, being selected by Vernon Robinson, director, will include one of the best-level symphonies of the great masters and a program of classic and modern works.

Last summer some disappointment was expressed upon the evenings when Lark Ellen did not appear as a soloist, so she will sing at this first concert and several times during the season, performances occurring on alternate Monday nights from July 1 to September 9. Madame Yaw on each occasion will demonstrate the echo which gives its name to the bowl. And by the way, she has discovered in Balboa park a double echo and on Lark Ellen day, to be observed at the San Diego exposition on August 20th, it is hoped that she will reawaken this phenomenon.

Meat Market Man Home From Colorado

William Kimsey, manager of the Pay'n Takit meat department, returned Tuesday from Durango, Colorado, where he had been called Saturday, June 15, by the death of his brother, James Kimsey, railroad conductor, who was killed when he fell between two cars of his train at Lumberton, New Mexico. He was 35 years of age and had worked for the Rio Grande railroad for forty-four years. Mrs. Kimsey accompanied her husband on the trip.

THE TRAIL WE BLAZE

The woodsman slashed a forest tree, Blazing a trail so all could see, Leaving a mark to show the way For others at some later day; He soon forgot the path he made, Thru the dark green forest shade, And went his way to lands unknown, Marking his path thru life alone.

But another saw the notch he made, And thought for the friendly aid, As he took the forest trail, Knowing that beyond the leafy veil He could follow notches on the trees And reach his goal with greater ease, Because of one who had gone before To open wide the unknown door.

Each of us may blaze a trail To help some other thru the vale, Though we may not know the trail we make Will show another what path to take; Each act we do, each word we speak, May lead some other soul to seek A better, clearer way to live, Because of the help our blaze may give.

George Peden stood watching the fire consume his garage. All of a sudden he started to jump up and down and wave his arms. "Holy smoke," he yelled, "I just remembered. My car's in there!"

We never did put much stock in that fish story Tom Logan told when he went down to Henshaw lake last week. In the first place, we didn't see any of the fish he claims to have caught. Now we know all about it. Barney Dial and Lynn Breaker took Wednesday off and went down to investigate, and the things they learned about Tom's actual catch and the size of them makes it perfectly clear why he didn't pass any around to his friends.

But Barney and Lynn are different, even if they do work at Drew's with Tom. Wednesday evening, just as we were wondering what we could have for our supper (we're old-fashioned and still call it supper instead of dinner), we heard someone at our door. It was Barney and Lynn. "Bill," they said, "come out to our car, we want to show you something." We went. Tom had been there for a week, but these two left early Wednesday morning and were back at five. And they had forty-nine of the finest fish we have seen since we left the United States. And even better still, they left us some for our supper, which to us is the real proof.

Tom is going to have to revamp that yarn he told until he, too, can produce some evidence.

The Los Angeles city council has passed an ordinance which prohibits milkmen from delivering their product until eight o'clock in the morning. We're going to see if we can't get our city council to do something about Wally Barcroft waking us up at five every morning.

Times haven't changed much, after all. We old-timers often like to tell that boys are not the same as we were when we were kids. That's all bunk, kids haven't changed, it's just us. Here's how we know:

One day last week Baker Bill Peterson and his wife, Miss Tillie, told their son, Billy, that he couldn't go swimming. Late in the afternoon Big Bill was upstairs and he noticed Little Billy sauntering nonchalantly into the bakery, with his hair all combed and tale-tellingly wet. Bill called Billy upstairs. "Billy," says he, "have you been swimming?" Billy saw his dad's eyes on his hair and knew the jig was up. "Yes, sir," he said. Bill told the boy to go down and tell his mother he was home, so she wouldn't worry, and then come back upstairs and receive the paddling that had been promised him if he went swimming again without permission.

Billy was gone quite a while and when he got back his dad gave him the customary talking to, including the this-is-going-to-hurt-me-worse-than-it-does-you, and proceeded to lay on the muddle. Billy didn't seem to mind it much until his dad landed a stroke a little lower than the rest, and then he really jumped and let out a holler. Investigation showed that Billy had stuffed the seat of his breeches with rags and everything was jake until the stroke that landed below the padding.

Bill thinks that Billy pulled a fast one on him, but remembering when we were a kid and knowing Miss Tillie, we are not so sure that it was all Billy's doing. Anyway, it took us back to old times.

Speaking of boyhood days, we were in the Pax'n Takit Wednesday just as Woody Core dropped a watermelon on the concrete floor.

At last Granny Wilson has solved the problem and has discovered just what has been the matter with his ball team this season, or rather, it was Doc Goodell that made the discovery. In the words of the baseball fan, the Merchants have "been tied in a knot" all season. That means that their nerves have been on such a strain that they just couldn't seem to get into action and

Gummosis Appears in Many Citrus Groves This Year

Because of the unusual presence this year of a bark disease known as "gummosis" affecting citrus trees, Farm Advisor M. B. Rounds, representing the University of California in Los Angeles county, warns citrus growers to make an early survey of their orchards in order to combat this insidious disease. In citrus orchards this spring there has appeared an unusual percentage of gummosis affected trees, probably due to the moist weather, with temperature conditions in combination with moisture ideal for the development of the disease on the trunks of the trees.

When infection takes place this disease grows rapidly in the bark of the tree, especially during warm weather, and soon girdles the tree. Treatment is to cut out all the infected bark to the wood, removing this; also cutting into the good bark to a depth of two inches above the infected area and one inch on either side, removing all the bark to the woody portion. Afterwards paint with a disinfectant such as a solution (one teaspoonful of potassium permanganate to a pint of water), and in about one month paint with some kind of a protective material in order to prevent decay of the wood.

Growers are warned not to confuse this disease with sealy bark, the treatment for which is not to remove all the bark, but to scrape the outer portion.

Fireworks Exhibit to Be Held at Pasadena Bowl

Two of the greatest fireworks set pieces ever shown in this section come in the Fourth of July show in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena this year. One of the items is a set piece depicting the famed encounter of the Constitution and the British ship, Guerriere, on August 19, 1812. In that great battle Commodore Isaac Hull of the Constitution captured the British ship and the encounter is faithfully reproduced in fireworks from the famed painting by Lewis. The fireworks ships are each 40 feet long and some 25 feet tall, and they battle in a sea of fireworks which extends from side to side of the great field of the Rose Bowl, a distance of more than 225 feet.

A second great fireworks set-piece on the program is to depict Washington Crossing the Delaware. The central and moving figure of the boat, also reproduced from the picture, is 36 feet long. With its background this feature is only a big show. The fireworks show follows at 10 o'clock with a great three-ring circus, starring everything to be found in such a show from elephants to an aerial act on a tower 110 feet high.

State Pamphlet on Black Widow Spider

Farm Advisor M. B. Rounds of Los Angeles county makes the announcement that a bulletin from the college of agriculture, University of California, is now available on the subject of the black widow spider, from the office of the farm advisor, 524 North Spring street, Los Angeles. Copies of this bulletin are available for free distribution. The authors, Herms, Bailey and McIvor, give a complete description of the black widow spider, tells of its habits, its life history, something of the way it kills its prey, and give some suggestions on control. They also describe in some detail the effect of the bite of this spider on man and the treatment therefor.

Among the sprays that are recommended for trial by the authors of the bulletin is mentioned a one per cent solution of nicotine sulphate in water and a pyrethrum-oil spray, which is used to paralyze the spider. The one stated to be the most effective contains creosote. The creosote also acts as a repellent.

RETURN FROM EAST Charles and Dean Fesler returned to their respective homes on Friday of last week from a trip east. The trip was made by train to Lansing, Michigan, where the latter purchased a new Oldsmobile car. From that point they motored to Niagara Falls and stopped at Anderson, Indiana, where they spent a short time with their sister, Mrs. Salie Larcher. Brief stops were also made in Chicago and in Longmont, Colorado.

loosen up, especially when they were at bat. Monday night the boys were playing at Pomona. In the first inning Pomona scored two runs, and Covina had the usual goose egg. Doc was sitting on the bench gritting his teeth. In fact, he gritted them so hard that he decided he had better get something to bite on or he would break all his teeth. So he went over and bought a couple of bags of peanuts. Just as he got back to the bench the boys were coming in off the field and they all made a grab for the peanuts and began munching. Doc had to get some more and the players sat and enjoyed them until they were called to bat. By the fourth inning they were pretty well filled up, Doc having brought all the peanuts there were on the grounds.

Then the fun started. Hal Forney walked out to the plate and knocked a home run, the beginning of a bat-fest that left the score 12 to 2 in favor of Covina, Art Powell being so full of peanuts that he knocked a home run so far that they are still looking for the ball.

And Doc just looked on and grinned. "They've all gone nuts on peanuts," he said to himself.

SUGGESTIONS

...how to SEE the Fair

(By the Editor)

Accompanied by our wife, we spent three days last week visiting the California Pacific International exposition at San Diego. We have returned well satisfied that we have received many-fold in returns for the money and energy expended.

During the past forty years we have visited most of the expositions held in America, some of which have exceeded in size and pretension, in their collection of the products and the then known inventions of the world, the fair now being held in San Diego; but for beauty of setting and as an exhibit of educational and artistic excellence, none of them has excelled and few have even equaled the exposition now in progress on the grounds of America's exposition in 1400-acre Balboa park, which can be reached from Covina in a three-hour motor trip over 125 miles of paved boulevards.

Visitors if they are wise, will make no attempt to drive to the exposition entrances in their own cars. Doing so, they will discover to their sorrow that it will take about thirty minutes to find a parking place and to walk from the same to the entrance gates. Leave your cars in a downtown garage or parking station and take a street car, No. 7 or No. 11, at any point on Broadway between the waterfront and Twelfth street—five-cent fare direct to the east and main entrance of the exposition grounds. This gate is only two miles from the downtown business section, and the cars make the trip on practically a twelve-minute schedule.

As time appears to be the essence of life to the average American, visitors are constantly asking how long it will take to see the exposition. Many imagine they can see it in three hours. Even in this limited time it is possible, by utilizing the serpentine busses, to cover, within the grounds, miles of beautiful avenues, bordered with pansies and petunias, shaded by shrubbery and trees, the latter planted over twenty years ago, glimpsing the more than two hundred industrial and scientific exhibits to be found in the palaces that line the streets. This is scanning, not seeing, the exposition.

To really enjoy and to come away with the knowledge that the citizens of San Diego are putting over an exposition, which in future years will be spoken of as an important epoch in the history of California, three days is not too long a time to devote to the exhibit buildings fronting on the avenida de Palacios, running directly thru the grounds between the east and west gates; another to the Palisades area, which includes the Ford building and exhibit and everything south of the organ amphitheater; and another to the north section, which begins at the Calle Colon and includes the Spanish Village, the zoo, the Zocalo, and the Indian village.

It is conceded by all that the most elaborate exhibit of the whole fair is that of the Ford Motor company's permanent steel and concrete building which, with the Ford Bowl and the Roads of the Pacific, comprise the Ford exposition unit. In the main exhibit building guides explain to the visitors how the modern motor car develops from the raw materials of the earth to the finished product. In a central location of the hall are displayed three historic Ford cars, including Henry Ford's first car, built in 1893, the first model A Ford, built in 1905, and the first model T, in 1908, and around these a continuous stream of people passes every hour of the day. To reach this exhibit without loss of time, visitors should take the ten-cent bus at either the east or west entrance gates.

Strange as it may seem in this age of "jazz," the most popular entertainment on the grounds is found at the Old Globe theater, where abbreviated versions of Shakespearean plays are presented by Old Globe theater players, who have presented 1500 performances since their initial appearance at the Chicago world's fair in 1933. This unique playhouse, patterned after the original Old Globe theater in London in 1599, has a seating capacity of 600. The writer with his wife attended four performances and the house was filled each time. Each play lasts forty-five minutes, with five performances daily. The popularity of this entertainment is common talk upon the grounds. On the village green outside the theater are hourly performances of old English country dances, presented without charge.

A feature which adds much to the comfort and pleasure of the day, is the abundance of seats scattered thruout the grounds, shaded by the shrubbery, where visitors can rest and listen to the musical programs in progress in the amphitheater, and brought to them by means of amplifiers installed in towers thruout the grounds. These instruments have been so delicately adjusted that the shading of the voice is as discernible as though the listener was in the front row of the amphitheater.

Daily concerts are given at the great outdoor pipe organ—the largest ever built. It contains cathedral chimes, concert harp, drums and cymbals. During the eleven weeks of the exposition the Ford Motor company is presenting five famous Pacific coast symphony orchestras of Salt Lake City.

Local Players Rally to Beat San Bernardino

Headed by the stellar pitching of Lionel Brown, Manager Grady Wilson's Covina Merchants nightball team came thru to win its second consecutive, and fifth American league win in the first half of the season, with a decisive 8-0 victory over the strong San Bernardino nine in a rather one-sided affair held on the local park diamond last Tuesday night.

Brown hurled an outstandingly tight game, holding the visitors to three scattered hits, while the locals hit Fowler, San Bernardino hurler, almost at will.

The Merchants got off to a flying start in their half of the first frame by scoring three runs. With two outs in the inning, Babe Coltrin, Covina shortstop, singled to get on first and then advanced to second as Forney, new Merchant center fielder and batter supreme, was walked by Fowler. Midkiff followed Forney to the plate for Manager Wilson and banged out a timely two-bagger to send Coltrin home with the first tally of the game. Wild pitches allowed both Forney and Midkiff to score the second and third runs of the inning, while H. Tallman got to first base on a walk, but was unable to tally.

A pair of errors by the San Bernardino shortstop, followed by a single by Widener, Merchant backstop, sent Lionel Brown across the plate with the fourth Covina run in the latter half of the second inning.

Nary a run was scored in either the third or fourth frames, but the Wilsonmen were back in the fifth stanza to increase their lead by another pair of runs. Al Brown, first baseman, opened the Covina half of the fifth by drawing a walk. The next two batters for the frame were put out, but batting fourth was Forney, who on his two previous trips to the plate had been walked, and who on this trip connected square for a home run, scoring Brown before him.

Scoreless again in the sixth, the locals appeared in the scoring mood again in the seventh frame, when they tallied their last two runs. Two San Bernardino errors, a walk, and three Covina singles managed to send Kent Williams and Babe Coltrin across the plate with the seventh and eighth Covina scores.

The San Bernardino hits, all of which were singles, were collected in the first, fifth and sixth frames.

The local sluggers were able to pound out nine safeties, including a home run, two doubles, and six singles. Topping the Covina hit list for his second straight time was Forney, who batted 1,000 per cent with his home run and single in two times at bat. Ham Tallman followed Forney with a pair of singles in three times at the plate, while Babe Coltrin placed third by knocking two bingles in four trips to the plate.

G. Kelly, left fielder; Bromilow, second baseman, and E. Kelly, right fielder, managed to garner the San Bernardino hits.

Brown decidedly outshone Fowler in number of strikeouts, as well as in number of hits allowed opponents, as 17 San Bernardino batters were whiffed by the local ace, and only seven Merchants were retired by the lone efforts of Fowler.

Double-Header Ball Game to Be Played Tonight

The first double-header nightball game to take place on the City park diamond this season is to be played tonight with Hovey Cook's smart-playing Millionaire Kids girls' team furnishing opposition in both games. The first game, which is scheduled to begin about 8 o'clock, will find the Millionaire Kids clashing for seven innings with the strong Shamrock girls' team of Hollywood in what promises to be a game thrilling enough for any nightball fan, as both teams hold formidable season records to date.

The second game, which should draw a crowd large enough to three times fill the bleachers, will immediately follow the first fray and will find the Covina American Legion All-Stars men's team fighting it out with their superiors (?), the girls' team, in a five-inning fray. Playing for the All-Stars will be some of Covina's outstanding business men, and the crowd it draws should compare with that of the famous donkey baseball games held here last summer.

Heading the list of those who are slated to see action against the girls are Irvan G. Reynolds, automobile magnate of the local community; Jack (Slim) Hayden, local representative of the Shell Oil company; Dick Jackson of the postoffice force; Hugh Burton of the Covina Citrus association; George Peden, hardware

Merchants to Meet League Leaders

After winning two games with a new brand of aggressive play, the Covina Merchants on Tuesday night are scheduled to meet Colton, league leaders, on the home grounds.

In its last two games Covina has amassed a total of twenty runs, with Lionel Brown pitching effectively and the fielders playing errorlessly, so the game Tuesday, which will be the last in the first round of league play, should be a standout.

Manager Wilson has secured a sensation at bat in Hal Forney, who has been hitting up toward the 1,000 mark, and this has encouraged his teammates to the point where they will be hard for the smart-playing Colton aggregation to stop.

Tonight (Friday) the Merchants go to Arlington to meet the league team of that place.

Wednesday Mrs. Oliver Saylor and Miss Pauline Saylor of Bonita avenue and Mrs. William Hummel of Chino motored to Long Beach.

dealer: Chief of Police Ralph Coolman; Charles Zug, D. L. Harrington; Norman C. Schmidt; Cecil Freeman; Gordon Rhodes of the Automobile club; and starting in the right field position will be "Deak" Bishop, who is one of the players the girls will have to be careful about.

With such a lineup as listed above, the interest taken in this game is expected to draw the greatest crowd to pass through the gate this season.

Covina Night Ball Team Wins 12-2 Over Pomona

Staging a nine-inning hitting streak, Manager Grady Wilson's Covina Merchants nightball team managed to pound out a decisive 12-2 win over the Pomona nine for the Merchants' fourth league win, in a fray held on the losers' diamond last Friday night. Although gaining hits in every stanza but the first, the Merchants were rather slow in starting to pile up their score and the Pomona team held a two-run lead until the fourth inning, when the Wilsonmen pushed across their first score.

The first three Merchants to bat in the opening frame were put out, but not so with the Pomonans, for the first batter singled, the second bled, and the third man to the plate poked out a triple to score the first two men for the only two Pomona tallies of the game. Brown settled down after the first frame and nary a Pomona player reached first base during the next five innings.

The first Covina score came in the first half of the fourth stanza, when Forney, Wilson's new center fielder, followed Coltrin to the plate and poked out his first home run of the game. Henderson followed Forney with a single, but was not able to score during the inning.

Still on the short end of a 2-1 score, the Merchants decided to come from behind and did so in the fifth frame by tallying twice to gain a one-run lead. The two tallies came as a result of a Pomona error, two Covina hits and a walk. The Merchant score came as a result of a Pomona error, two Covina hits and a walk. The Merchant score was increased by one lone tally in the sixth with the aid of another Pomona error, a walk and a pair of singles.

The Wilsonmen were held scoreless in the seventh frame, but came back in their half of the eighth to push across three runs as the Pomona chucker walked three Merchants, allowed two others to get safeties, and to add to the trouble the Pomona first baseman bobbled a throw to him.

Seemingly not satisfied with their safe lead, the Merchants put on a needless ninth-inning rally to tally five more runs. At Powell, Wilson's right fielder, opened the rally with a four-base clout and was followed by L. Brown, who was thrown out at first. Widener, Covina catcher, batted third and drew a walk. Al Brown fanned, but Kent Williams singled to advance Widener, and then Babe Coltrin got a two-base smash to score the latter runner. Forney came to the plate next and swatted out his second home run of the game to clear the bases, bringing in the last three Merchant runs.

Lionel Brown, pitching an outstanding game for Wilson, and along with an improved type of Merchant fielding, the losers were held to only eight hits, while Covina sluggers, hitting their best, amassed a total of fifteen safeties from Chilcott and Spottswood, Pomona hurlers. Brown managed to retire seventeen Pomona batters via the strikeout route, while only eight Merchants were whiffed.

Topping the Covina hit list was the outstanding record of Forney, playing with the Merchants for his first time. Forney's record consisted of five hits in six times to bat, with two of them home runs, two of them doubles, and a fifth a single. Kent Williams followed Forney with three singles in six tries.

Andrus, Pomona catcher, headed the losers' hit list with a double and a single in four trips to the plate, but Hoover, playing in the Pomona center field, was very close behind Andrus with a pair of singles in four tries at the bat.

"Oil for the Lamps of China" Starts Saturday at Fox-Pomona

Once in a long time there comes to the screen a picture of such vital import, gripping power and amazing human interest as the Cosmopolitan production, "Oil for the Lamps of China," which Saturday will be the featured attraction at the Fox theater in Pomona, and which features Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson, shown above, and a cast of favorites, including Jean Muir, Lyle Talbot, Arthur Bryon and John Eldridge. The preview feature with this program is "Party Wire," featuring Evelyn Venable, Robert Young, and several screen favorites. The preview feature will be shown once only on Saturday night at 11 p. m. as a midnight preview. The first two evening shows will feature only "Oil for the Lamps of China" and selected short subjects.

There will be continuous shows Sunday from 2 to 11 p. m. The preview feature will be shown at all shows Sunday, and once nightly on Monday and Tuesday nights, in between the regular showings of "Oil for the Lamps of China."

Hollywood Girls' Baseball Team Wins Over Covina

A smart-playing girls' team from Hollywood, representing Chappell's cafe, journeyed to the Covina city park diamond last Friday night to almost literally walk away with a 12-3 victory over Hovey Cook's Millionaire Kids female team in a seven-inning fray. The fact that the visitors were given no less than twelve free walks somewhat explains the preceding statement.

The first three Chappell batters in the initial stanza drew walks, and although the fourth slugger was fanned, the fifth also walked to force in the fifth tally of the game. However, Tessie Doderhoff pulled herself niftily from the hole by whiffing the next two batters, leaving three visitors on bases. The winners were held hitless and scoreless until the third frame, when a single and a pair of Covina errors netted the second and third Chappell runs. Although collecting one hit per inning, the local girls were not able to push across their first tally until the fourth inning, when E. Maxson drew a walk and then scored as she was followed by C. Jackson, who managed to smash out a three-bagger.

The first half of the fifth inning found the visitors having their big rally to score no less than six runs and gain a lead of 9-1. A Covina error, four walks and a pair of safe hits were instrumental in the scoring of six runs.

The second Cook team score came in the sixth inning as Dumphy went to first on a Hollywood error and then scored as G. Jackson popped out a triple. The twelfth and final Chappell stanza was a safe hit by the visiting catcher was followed by a pair of Covina errors and a walk to bring in the run.

The last Covina run was also tallied in the seventh and final frame as Waldrip, substitute third baseman on the Cook team, went to the plate and banged out the only four-base clout of the game.

Six safeties were garnered by the visitors and six by the locals, while only seven of the Millionaire sluggers were fanned as to eleven Chappell batters, who were retired via the strikeout route.

Girls' Nightball Team Wins Over Alhambra Nine

Hovey Cook's snappy-playing girls' nightball team came thru with another victory last Wednesday night as they journeyed to Alhambra to take a 15-12 victory over the latter girls' team in a seven-inning fray.

The local team began scoring early in the first stanza and at the end of the second frame had a 6-2 lead. However, the Alhambra rallied in the third inning and at the end of the same had cut the Millionaire Kid lead down to 7-6. Not to be outdone, the local team was back in the first half of the fourth to rally again and push across four more runs. The local margin was cut down to one run.

The girls tallied six times to twice for the Millionaire Kids, making the score 13-12. The seventh inning found Cook's girls marking up their final two scores.

Leading the Millionaire Kid batting list was G. Jackson, right fielder, who batted a perfect score with four safeties in the same number of times at bat. Topping the Alhambra list was Roberts, catcher, who poked out three hits in four times at bat. The locals tallied fourteen safeties, while the losers were held to twelve hits.

Chevrolet Averages 21.75 Miles Per Gallon in 3000 Mile Run

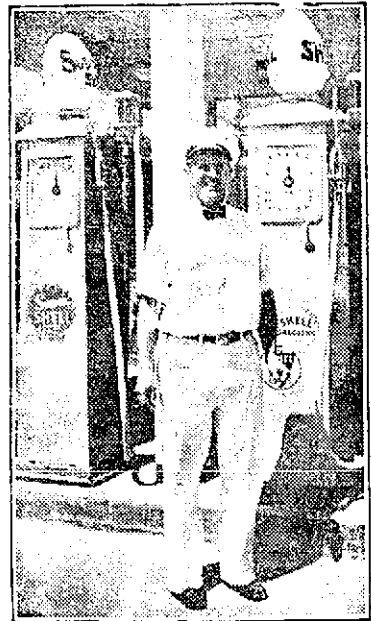

With the crankcase and ignition sealed by California officials, this strictly-stock 1935 Chevrolet Master De Luxe sedan was driven 3000 miles without a stop, traversing locale that offered all extremes of temperature and weather conditions in the state. The results showed 21.75 miles per gallon of "Rocket 90" gasoline. Only three and three-quarters quarts of Pennzoil were required to fill the crankcase when the seal was broken. Only one quart of water was used. Top left, Ted Ellis, the driver, and the stock Chevrolet furnished by Ted Eades Chevrolet Company of Inglewood, Calif. Top right, the official seals for ignition and crankcase. Lower right, Ted Ellis and Frank J. Berka inspect the seals. The route of the non-stop journey included the High Sierra, Death Valley, and Muroc Dry Lake.

NEW SHELL SUPER SERVICE STATION TO HOLD FORMAL OPENING HERE TOMORROW

Formal opening of the new Shell Oil company service station at the corner of Citrus avenue and Cottage Drive will be held Saturday evening, June 29, according to J. M. Hayden, Covina manager for the Shell company. The station was built by the Nigg Engineering corporation, and has cost approximately $10,000, including building, equipment and the improvement of the corner where the station is located.

"We are proud of our new station," Hayden said this week while showing an Argus reporter thru the building. "It is equipped with every modern convenience to facilitate and expedite the traveling public's demand for prompt, efficient and courteous service.

"Men selected for the job of operating this super service unit are all local boys. This is a definite policy of the Shell company, and any boys hired are always local. Many hundreds of the men comprising the vast Shell army who serve the public from one end of the country to the other, were born in the localities they work in.

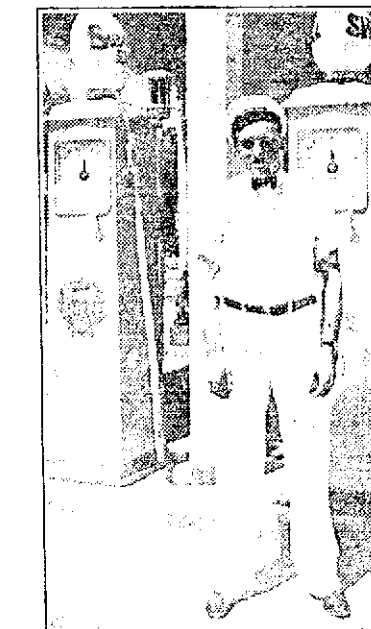

"Ted Hoogendyk, who graduated from Covina high school in 1923, will be the manager of the station, and Frank Brandon, '31, and Babe Coltrin, '30, will be his assistants. Babe

FRANK BRANDON

Coltrin is a member of Covina's American league night club.

"Equipment on the station itself consists of three, modern electrically-operated gasoline pumps which will throw ten gallons of gasoline into a car in something like 35 seconds. A Walker electric lift has been installed to take care lubrication needs, and is so built as to give ready access to any moving part of the motor or chassis. There is also a complete and complex line of lubrication equipment. There are approximately twenty different 'guns,' each containing a separate grade of lubricant for the distinct and varied necessities found on a modern car.

"For those who like to plan their traveling days, a complete lineup of Shell's travel information, together with road maps, has been installed.

"This is the first Shell station in the city of Covina," said Hayden, "and another proof of Shell's conviction that business has rebounded upwards and that happy days are not only just around that old corner, but are already here."

Present Economic System Assailed by Methodists

A number of citizens from the Covina valley have been in attendance this week at the annual Southern California conference of Methodist ministers and laymen, now in session at Long Beach.

Interest has centered largely around the report of the "Social Problems and International Relations" committee, which favors the elimination of profit and the building of a new cooperative order as a substitute for the present economic system.

On Wednesday afternoon by an overwhelming vote the ministers and laymen rejected a minority report which cautioned the church against joining a general stampede and which urged that the conference approve the correction and improvement of the present economic system instead of supporting its abolishment.

The majority report as adopted denounced a "social order built at variance with the will of God," and requested Congress to nationalize the ammunition industry by taking all profit from it and urged that armament appropriations be reduced and an international police force substituted.

An attempt to add an amendment which would have instructed the church boards to refuse admission to the conference of clergymen who refused to agree that they would not support any future war failed on point of order and expediency under church regulations.

Among Covina citizens in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon, Rev. and Mrs. Harry G. Earle, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Pence, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Stuckey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Matthews.

RFC Sympathetic in Power Line Controversy

Jack Campbell of Claremont returned this week from Washington, D. C., where he has been representing the San Gabriel Valley Defense committee before the R.F.C., in the former's controversy with the Los Angeles Bureau of Power and Light, seeking the rerouting of the bureau's power line.

"The R.F.C. is extremely sympathetic and anxious to use its best influence in securing an amicable settlement of this right-of-way problem," Campbell said. "Officials expressed the hope that the department of power and light may find some way to avoid arousing the general public disapproval of the proposed power line route."

Added emphasis to the objections raised by the defense committee was given by the U. S. forestry service, at Washington, which filed with the R. F. C. a letter requesting that the power line be rerouted because the projected line is considered a very real and unnecessary fire hazard in the San Bernardino and Angeles national forests, upon which the water supply of the entire valley is dependent.

Following the meeting of the committee on Wednesday its secretary, J. D. Johnson, announced that broad and extensive plans are being formulated to further the fight.

Clark Successfully Defends Title

Robert Clark of Covina successfully defended his title as national decathlon champion in the meet at San Diego Wednesday and Thursday of this week, in the last five events nosing out Willis Ward, the Michigan negro. Clark amassed a total of 7929.22 points in the meet. Clark has held the championship for this event since last year.

NEW SALES TAX TO BENEFIT THOSE IN DESPERATE NEED

By J. L. MATTHEWS
Editor Covina Argus

Clayton L. Howland, administrator for the state board of equalization for Los Angeles county, is not in favor of Governor Merriam's new sales tax law, which is expected to go into effect next Monday.

This law exempts food products purchased at stores and markets, and levies three per cent on food sold in restaurants, clothing, all malt and alcoholic drinks, soft drinks sold over the counter, household equipment, furniture, automobiles, etc.

Mr. Howland believes that the law merely leaves money in one pocket and takes it out of another. He thinks that the average householder has in fact been hit harder by the new method than the old.

But there is a bitter fact recognized by Governor Merriam in the new law, and which I believe Mr. Howland has overlooked. It is this:

In Los Angeles county alone there are 75,000 families living on a dole of $10.50 per month or less. In addition to these are many thousands of people who have barely been able to buy food in the past two years, and the conditions are now even more critical than formerly.

Much as we would like to see an increase in the business of equipping households with furniture and appliances; much as we would rejoice in any business increase for restaurants, we are confronted by a grim condition, and not theory. Governor Merriam and the legislature are probably right in removing the sales tax from foods. For several years families have been forced to forego furniture purchases, and, in fact, all purchases save that of food and shelter. Clothing purchases have been reduced to the minimum by thousands of families. Food purchases cannot be reduced any more than in the past. The new tax is a distinct relief to those who need it most, for they are not buying in any quantity the articles upon which the new tax is levied, while those who are buying more than food and shelter are presumably able to bear the tax.

Estimates of revenue from the new law are too high, in my opinion. The release of food from taxation means the exclusion of the greatest, most universal expenditure. Abraham Lincoln said God must love the poor, because he makes so many of them. Because they are the most numerous, they are the greatest and most prolific source of revenue. When food is excluded from tax the return is prone to be over-estimated.

We will find, I think, that the elimination of the food tax will be a great boon where pennies are most carefully counted. The governor, and many of us, have been given a stark, close-up picture of the destitution that confronts state and county government. Anything, however small, that will aid those in these desperate conditions should be welcomed and encouraged.

Guests at dinner on Tuesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Douglas on North Second street were Mrs. Florence Bennett and two daughters, Marilyn and Joyce, and Roland Heeb of Los Angeles.

Value Fallacies—

Market computation of property devaluation by the county assessor may seem to be to the taxpayer, but it is a two-word. Tax rates must go up as value comes down, because there is a budget that has an irreducible minimum.

Assessor's office announces that the valuation for each citizen in the county as related to $875 in 1929. But the has enormously increased because of deflation.

It is true that citrus property has a very small margin of profit to the aggregate in the last several years is not to be inferred by the assessor's that citrus orchards have depreciated in value, or that they have depreciated all in holding value. The cause of the per cent devaluation in the county is found in metropolitan and suburban property. There has been better than fifty per cent reduction in rental and return on these properties, and the loss of these holdings carries downward the average.

There has not been any such reduction in the power of citrus groves. Rental of has been operated at a distinct loss for years, but for the most part, citrus has paid expenses as related to the fruit and upkeep, with a better average than favored communities.

For what valuations may be, either by, arbitrarily or actually, the tax must meet the cost of city, county, and special district maintenance. The amount of the levy is determined by the amount of the levy.

It is found that, while blanket surveys perhaps a fifty per cent devaluation in the county, the citrus holdings still possess as much valuation, present and past, as in normal periods. It is this fact that refutes the accuracy of demand values. In meantime, while present conditions, and afterwards, for that matter, citrus as well as other property owners, realize that it is futile to argue for devaluations in order to reduce tax reductions merely raise the tax rate, the needs of the budget are inescapable.

Crisis With Authority—

William J. Cameron, president of Ford Motor Company, sounded a most gratifying note in his talk last Sunday on the Ford radio.

About mentioning the recent demise of the RA, he asserted that America came to a crisis just a few weeks ago, after five years of business sleepwalking and legislative nightmare. He believes that our emergence from mental confusion and financial crisis has begun. He hoped that other nations, counting the depression of invaluable value if we, as a people, can treat the memory of our miseries, and profit thereby.

But in the most distressful period the great American stream of strong hope and certainty of direction flowed in its deep, accustomed channel, he said, unimpaired by the choppy wind ripples on the surface that gave the illusion that the stream was flowing in the opposite direction. There is authority in the words of this man, if for no other reason than that he heads the greatest independent, American-made industrial concern in this country today, a company stronger and bigger than before the depression, and one which has capitalized and benefited by the lessons of the difficult period.

Courage, independence, intelligence, business prescience, have built this gigantic business. Optimism, backed by accomplishment, always most convincing, and we should always take heart, for each of us, at least in a small way, in our appointed place, can in this emergence into a new age of light and reason and personal prosperity.

Why Jobs Remain Scarce—

A greater number of citizens were employed in April than in March of this year, and the ratio of increase was sustained for May.

Alexander Hamilton institute computes that there were 37,543,000 citizens working at gainful pursuits in April. This is near to the mark of May and June of last year, which was higher than since 1929.

In April of this year, according to the institute, there were 12,768,000 able-bodied citizens unemployed. While unemployment was slightly less than in this period last year, the gain was offset by the increase in population.

Five years of heroic attempts to break the depression jinx, a period encompassing part of two opposing national administrations, should serve to convince legislators and administrators that the cure does not lie in "sharing the work," "priming the pump," nor in "make work" programs. These have served as blood transfusions in the financial life-stream, but there is an internally-leaking artery in the body politic that constitutes a lethal drain. This drain is the high cost of credit, the use of money.

Our business wealth is symbolized by our circulating medium, and too much of this medium is being absorbed as a tax on the use of the symbol itself.

It should be axiomatic that there must be an equal amount of purchasing power for that of productive power, in order to maintain a business balance. But this can never be as long as such a substantial segment of the industrial dollar is used for a purpose that produces no wealth whatever. It will not adjust until the cost of money is drastically reduced.

Gold Moves to Oblivion—

France, because of its substantial gold reserves, has clung obstinately to the gold standard, but there are strong indications that the entire European gold bloc is doomed.

Holland and Switzerland hover on the edge of a gold repudiation, following the action of Belgium, and this drift is forcing other nations to abandon gold or devalue the currency. Whenever France is "on the spot," with seemingly no way out, they resort to an ingenious political device. The cabinet falls. There is a reorganization, generally with no new membership, a shuffling of the cards, without a new deal.

But France is discovering that heavy gold reserves have no beneficial effect on business health in these days when the needs of the world far exceed the quantity of gold. The world must come to the realization that not only is gold an illusion of wealth, but that the illusion obscures the reality. A gold certificate is merely a warehouse receipt for gold in storage. The gold is worthless, except to a small extent as it is used in the making of vanities and in the manufacturing processes for other commodities. If we finally learn to issue warehouse certificates on real commodities we will balance our currency with the amount of actual, usable wealth, and this will produce a continuous movement of all usable commodities.

The gold superstition has been carefully fostered for centuries by those who would control credit. Gold standards create an almost constant scarcity of circulating medium, therefore a restricted and controlled credit.

A Maestro on Relief—

Twenty-five years ago music lovers, as representing virtually all of us, thrilled to the brilliant artistry of Creator's concert band, the finest in this country.

For several years now, Guiseppe Creatore, famed maestro, has been sustained on the relief rolls of New York City. He once earned as high as five thousand dollars a day.

There was a time a few years ago when some of us might moralize cynically that such men should have practiced thrift and caution, and amply provided for their old age. But like many thousands of others, that is just what Creatore did. He invested his money, and lost all of it, even as hosts of others invested and lost. He was betrayed by men and institutions that should have exercised honesty and business judgment in the handling of other people's money.

Public confidence has been shaken by a tremor more devastating than that which destroyed Pompeii. It's of small use to talk of restoring the ruins of credit until at least some of the memory of that disaster has faded. Men and women are to be loath to enter enthusiastically into creative efforts in business and the arts if the life horizon is shadowed by old age and the breadline.

Citrus Fruits Abroad—

During the eleven-day period ending June 22, citrus shipments to the United Kingdom and Europe amounted to 460,000 boxes. This is far in excess of any previous shipments for a similar period.

This fruit was loaded at Los Angeles harbor on fifteen foreign-flag carriers, and at rates reasonable in comparison with past years. As an augmentation of the domestic market, the foreign trade is coming to be of measurable importance.

There is much truth in the statement that a great portion of our exporting trade has been permanently lost because nations have become more self-sustaining since the war. But this applies to commodities that can be grown or manufactured anywhere, or in large and scattered areas of the world. Citrus fruits are limited in production by climatic needs and by the high cost of production and maintenance. With the increasingly-intelligent efforts of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, supplemented by several large independent shippers, the foreign market gains annually in importance.

Mr. Thorpe has written many other articles of a travel nature for Argus readers, his trip previous to this one taking himself and wife around the world.)

Yokohama, Japan,
March 29, 1935.

Dear Covina:

It is about time we are heading for the best place on earth, which as you all know, is Covina, California, as our good old U. S. A. passport expires on the 31st of this month, at which time we will be out of a foreign land, on the high seas.

An earthquake or two cannot keep the Japanese down, and as our good ship (all ships are "good" ships) Empress of Japan sailed into the fine harbor of Yokohama, and dropped her anchor at a big modern dock with fine concrete buildings, we found a new big city grown on the ruins of the last earthquake of a few years ago, with a big exposition in honor of their recovery from the same, the streets gay with flags, bunting, banners, and artificial flowers of paper to make it look like the merry springtime, altho it felt like midwinter, whole streets with pergolas over the sidewalks, and fountains of paper wisteria, at the base of the columns supporting same beds of tulips in full bloom, also paper, but also splendid imitations of the real flowers.

The exposition covered a large tract of land very close to the docks, with buildings looking much like those at Chicago during the Century of Progress last year. They have a few buildings of eight or more stories, but most of the business houses are in two-story buildings, the upper stories being the homes of the shopkeepers. And what neat, clean, sanitary homes they have, as well as their city streets, all well brushed with modern power-driven sweepers, and most of them lined with newly-planted shade trees.

The first evening I was there it was my good fortune to attend lodge, where I met a fine lot of brothers, all British or Americans, including my good friend, E. W. Frazier, that fine Rotarian I had met at so many of the Rotary conventions. I enjoyed this evening immensely, and a good British brother took me back to the ship after the refreshments were over.

The next morning it was raining, but Anna and I braved the weather, did a little shopping in Yokohama, then took an electric train for Tokyo, some forty miles away. It was the best train we had seen, good clean cars, very fine roadbed, fast time, 45 minutes to make the 40-mile run, and trains leaving every ten minutes. The fare? Just 95 cents for two round-trip tickets, so who would not ride at that rate?

Arriving at Tokyo, we called a taxi and drove to the big Matsuzakaya department store, where we had a friend, and it took some little sign language to make the chauffeur understand where we wished to go, but by the aid of an English-speaking Japanese, we soon made the driver realize where we wished to go, and as we drove down Ginza street, their "Broadway," we saw our great delight and surprise that the cherry trees on both sides of the street were ablaze with their rich pink flowers, as far down the street as one could see—one of the most beautiful streets I have ever seen, but all that glitters is not gold, and we learned that our lovely cherry blossoms were also made of paper, but so skillfully placed on the stems of the dormant trees they did indeed look like real flowers.

Our friend in the big department store was not in at the time we called, but another English-speaking clerk attended to our wants, and we had to hurry back to Yokohama to catch our steamer at 4 o'clock, so our visit to Tokyo was entirely too short, but the remarkable growth of the city was very evident, splendid new buildings going up, new streets being laid out or paved, the people were all better dressed, and we saw no beggars. We went into an attractive shop to get some china, and before we could buy anything we had to sit down with the fat proprietor and his equally fat wife, by the side of their lovely charcoal-burning firepot, or hibachi, as they call it, and drink two cups of tea with them. After a few small purchases we took our departure, with good hearty handshakes, many low bows from the two good old people and all the clerks, making one really feel as if he were of some little importance.

Time and time again we were informed by the Japanese there was no depression in Japan, and indeed if they had any, it did not appear to the traveler, although we noticed it very evidently in all the other lands we had visited. Just realize that Tokyo is a city of nearly five times the size of Los Angeles, and growing fast. Splendid big silent-running buses instead of our noisy street cars, young girls as conductors and drivers, comfortable, roomy seats, and very fast. All this for five cents a trip. Also a fine underground system of railways, and numerous taxicabs, much cheaper than the rates in Los Angeles.

These Japanese are great lovers of flowers, and the florist shops were simply beautiful with a great variety of blossoms of all kinds, most of them grown in hothouses—gladioli, roses, geranias, lilies-of-the-valley, anthuriums, violets, and many others, and such beautiful specimens, too.

The shop-windows of the retail stores all showed the tendency of the Japanese to progress, their window displays being just as good taste and well arranged as in our own cities, the fronts of the same all of most modern modernistic type, with a rich glow of an abundance of Neon lights at night. And in every shop there would be at least one English-speaking person, often the wife, son or daughter, who had been to America or learned English in school.

The people were all bundled up in their winter garments, many of which are padded like a quilt, making some of the men look as if they were stuffed into a pillow, but all the same, they looked warm and comfortable. Of course the young women wore their richly embroidered silk kimonos and an elegant robe, that bustle-like addition to their sides, made from heavy broad-clothed silks, often costing more than their gowns. Very often you could see a red-flannel undershirt, proof of their desire for comfort.

If the Japanese have any idea of war in their minds, there is no indication of it on the surface, and everyone seems busy attending to his own business.

On the Empress we met some very pleasant people—Mr. and Mrs. Youngs of Shanghai, going back to Scotland, Mr. and Mrs. Geyton of Santa Cruz, just ending a ten-month tour of the world, Mr. and Mrs. Wetum of Sourabaya, Java, Dr. and Mrs. Dunlap from Cebu, Philippine islands, a good Rotarian as well as a Presbyterian, and the Curtis family from Calcutta, India, father, mother, and two daughters and a grown son, making their first trip to the United States, enroute to their homeland, England. We spent ten days on this ship, from Yokohama to Honolulu, giving us ample time to get better acquainted with these good people, with whom we visited, played deck games, and danced.

The night before we reached Honolulu, the captain gave a costume party, the prettiest one we have had on any ship, and such a good jolly time as we all had! The master of ceremonies was the fat purser, dressed like a Harry Lauder, and a genial character who kept the party going strong all the time, with plenty of waltzes and a jolly good old "Paul Jones," which made us all happy. A wonderful supper was served by the ship at midnight. Many of the costumes were very unique and beautiful, Anna drolling up as a Chinese lady, while I used some of our batik cloth to make a costume of a Javanese, with cap to match, and a real Javanese kris (sword) loaned by Mr. Van Wetum. The party did not break up until 3 a.m., but we did not stay to see the finish.

We reached Hawaii at 6 a.m., and as most of the passengers had never been there, all were on deck as we approached, and when they saw old Diamond Head, the lovely green hills in the distance a short time after, then the Royal Hawaiian hotel by the Moana hotel, on Waikiki Beach, all agreed it was the prettiest harbor they had ever seen with the exception of Rio de Janeiro in South America.

When we reached the dock a big crowd was waiting to welcome us, the Royal Hawaiian band was playing "Aloha," with two fine female voices singing Hawaiian songs, the enthusiasm of the passengers knew no bounds, and everyone shouted or clapped with joy, the climax ending when the Hawaiian girls wrapped leis of all kinds about their necks, welcoming them to Hawaii, something they never dreamed of. Then the passengers all got into automobiles to drive around the city and see the island, as their ship was to sail at four that same day. We came down to the dock again at four to see them depart, with plenty of floral leis for our particular friends, who stood on the decks waving to us as long as we were visible.

As for us, on landing to go thru the usual custom-house examination of all our baggage, and living thru this unpleasant ordeal, we went out to the home of Mrs. Dunsee, whose guests we were to be in Honolulu. Here we found a lot of mail from our Covina friends, the first we had received since leaving Singapore, a month ago. We were invited to luncheon with Mrs. Barnum, a lady we met on a former visit, while at 6 o'clock our old former Western Union Telegraph company friend, George Mellen, called for us with his wife, taking us to dinner at the famous Chinese restaurant of P. Y. Chong, one of the showplaces of Honolulu, and the most wonderful restaurant in all the world, bar none. George is a close friend of Chong's, and we were soon introduced to him, a most interesting fellow, who by his own ability and that of his close friend, George Mellen, with some clever advertising and advising, has risen from a small Chinese lunch counter to a swell big restaurant, often feeding 2000 people a day, making a specialty of Chinese cooking and dishes. The place is all gorgeously decorated with paneled rooms, the upper part of the panels, which are about two and a half feet wide, being of stained glass with Chinese figures, the lower sections being of hand-carved wood, heavily gilded with pure gold gilt, and real lacquer. A small lake under construction at present is to have a sampans on it, in which to row the guests to the other side, where the proprietor has built an artificial mountain about 100 feet high, in which are a series of tunnels in the form of grottoes, with paths up to the summit of the hill, from where a fine view of the city can be had, and in many little grottoes off the main tunnel are tiny dining rooms for small parties. Everything is Chinese, even to the dishes, the waiters wearing Chinese costumes, the rooms being so arranged that five hundred people may be accommodated at one time. Some wonderful parties have been given here. Don't forget to visit this place the next time you come here. There is a real Hawaiian orchestra, and one of the prettiest hula dancers we ever saw, who does this dance beautifully, only instead of the grass skirt, she wears one of long heavy silk threads, held on by a bright silver belt. Oh boy, if that belt ever broke! We were introduced to the dancer later in the evening, a sweet Hawaiian girl of about sixteen young years. I can still see her with her sinuous dances. In one of the private dining rooms of Oriental elegance hangs a picture of Chong, done by a famous artist friend, and on the margin the artist has written, "To my friend, P. Y. Chong, who tickles my bellie so very well!" Surely this charming bit of real China life cannot be in America! You feel sure you are mistaken and must be on some little side street in Pieping or Canton, but step out on the street and you are just across the road from the Moana hotel in Honolulu.

The next noon we were invited to a lunch party, and at 3 o'clock we went to a tea at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. Krause of the Hawaiian university, where the doctor and his daughter, Beatrice, are both teaching in the botanical department. After walking thru the grounds and seeing the many interesting plants and flowers, we were taken around the city for a delightful ride with Dr. and Mrs. Krause.

Here is a little episode that was most interesting to me: I was told to take a bus to a certain cross street to get to Dr. Krause's home, but when I got there no one of whom I inquired knew the street, and one little girl, with her school books under her arm, asked me if she could be of any help. I told her the address I wished to find, and she kindly offered to help me find it, remarking that she did not know my name, but that her name was Satsue Fujii, a sophomore student at the university. I looked at her in amazement, as she was so tiny, looking to be about nine years of age, her black hair done in two long braids, and wearing a neat gingham dress.

A boy told her the address was at the other end of the street from where we were, so off we started, walking and talking together, she telling me of her school, her ambitions and studies (she likes sociology and political economy the best), but was going to major in mathematics and chemistry. She talked to me like a mature woman instead of the little girl she appeared to be, and when we finally found we had been wrongly informed, and must retrace our steps, I was not a bit displeased, for it was one of the most pleasant experiences of my trip, meeting such a remarkable girl. I remarked that I did not like to take so much of her time, to which she replied that if she could be of any assistance to a stranger, it made her happy, so for 45 minutes we walked along those shady streets until a found the place I was going to. She said she would not leave me until she found the place. She met several of her fellow-students, who asked her where she was going. She only replied, "Oh, I am trying to help a stranger."

She asked me if I would be so kind as to mail her a postcard showing some of the American tall buildings. You may be sure she will get some of our best cards.

That same evening Horace White called for us with his Ford, to take us out to his home at Black Point, some seven miles from downtown, on the rocky shores of the ocean, near Diamond Head, their nice little bungalow only a few feet from the rocks. Mrs. White, whom we knew well as Lucille Matthews when she was a girl in Covina, was a most delightful hostess, and we all sat down to a delicious dinner, cooked and served by her Japanese servant. The first course was a splendid fruit cocktail, followed by an immense red snapper fish, cooked whole, stuffed with dressing, then a big plate of roasted bread-fruit, mashed and put back in its shell, peas and carrots, rolls, blanc-mange dessert, and black coffee. A very delicious change from the ship menus. It was a real treat to be invited to the home of these bright young people, who kindly brought us home after a delightful visit during the evening, Anna riding in front with Mr. White, while Lucille and I held down the rear seat.

The next morning we had to repack our things, and get ready to go to our steamer, the Malolo, of the Matson lines. George Mellen's wife called with their car, and fetched us to the ship, giving us several leis of flowers to wear as we boarded the vessel. Here at the ship were Mrs. Dunsee, Mrs. Barnum, and Mrs. Armstrong, each with more leis of sweet flowers, the good ladies giving us each a farewell kiss (yes, I got mine too). Our ship was soon a mass of serpentine and confetti from the ship to the dock, and we left with fond hopes of a return at no great future date. Just as we rounded Diamond Head on our way east we threw our leis back into the Pacific, as that is a sure sign we will come back to the enchanted island.

While in Honolulu I had the pleasure of meeting my friend the stamp collector, F. W. Reid, who invited me out to his house, and we had a pleasant visit together, he giving me all the latest stamp news.

So now, like Carrie Jacobs Bond's song, "We come to the end of a perfect day," so I reach the end of my feeble literary efforts, which have helped me pass many a pleasant hour writing home to you good Covinians, and my little portable Remington can have a rest until we are so fortunate as to have another trip. BEN.

Sheriff's Relief Association to Hold Annual Barbecue and Picnic July 14

Many prominent persons are planning to attend the twelfth annual barbecue and picnic of the Sheriff's Relief Association of Los Angeles county. The affair will be held at the California Zoological gardens, 3600 Mission road, Los Angeles, on Sunday, July 14.

sheriff. Lower right: the famous humorist, Irvin S. Cobb, who promises Sheriff Biscailuz, president of the relief association, that he will also help entertain visitors to the picnic. Center circle: Will Rogers telling the sheriff, "I'll try my dangdest to be there, Gene."

Supervisors Agree to Vote Money for Expansion

Upon the representation that the money was to be used to attract new industries to the county to provide work for the unemployed, the board of supervisors has tentatively agreed to set aside $195,000 for the Los Angeles chamber of commerce for 1935-36.

The amount, according to the county auditor, will approximate two cents on the 1935-36 county general tax rate, which itself is the object of considerable speculation. Formal contract between the supervisors and the chamber was being drafted today in the county council's office, and will be before the board for approval next Monday or possibly before.

Although Chairman Herbert C. Legg is in Washington, the $195,000 allocation is assured of passage, with the support of Supervisors John R. Quinn, Gordon L. McDonough and Roger W. Jessup. Supervisor John Anson Ford voted against the proposal, stating that he believed the chamber should stand more of the expenditures itself on behalf of foreign trade.

Elaine Ferguson and Bobbie Sylvester returned to their home on Bonita avenue on Wednesday from a three-weeks' motor trip spent in San Francisco and the redwood forest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pearson of West Center street were hosts on Sunday at dinner to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fogg, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fogg, Miss Elizabeth Fogg of Pasadena, Mrs. Marybelle Fogg of Lincoln, Nebraska, and Mr. and Mrs. Pearson Hall.

TOWN CHATTER

Any Covina girls who aspire to sing on the radio should enter the "Balboa Rendezvous Voice Hunt" being staged by the popular beach ballroom to find a songstress for Everett Hoagland's new rhythm crew which opens tonight. "By" will bring with him that famous Eddie Bush's Biltmore trio, as well as Jackie Pierce, rhythm singer, and Beau Lee, comedy songster. The return of Hoagland to Balboa will probably draw one of the largest crowds of the year to this ballroom, which appeals to so many of the Covinans who dance.

That little heart-breaker who is being seen and heard around town goes by the name of Opal—and is she cute!

To Virginia Ireland, a recent Covina Hi graduate, we say "Get Off" for she has completed her education from kindergarten thru the twelfth grade in ten years, and believe it or not, she has never been tardy or absent during this time. Is that a record or is that a record?

Don McIntosh, popular Colton Hi principal, and former coach for Covina Hi, has been seen about town recently, and it seems like old times to have him around.

It seems that someone asked who the good-looking salesman was at the Buick agency the other day and Irven said it was himself, and Bill Gommels insisted it must be none other than Bill Gommels, but after a long harangue 'twas discovered that the inquirer meant that very romantic-looking Clifford Nutt from the El Monte agency.

Apparently they expect a big day at the Fourth of July celebration, for they have an emergency committee including two doctors, a dentist, and an undertaker.

The Fourth will be a big day in our home town. The Lions are planning a rip-snortin' day with everything from a freckle contest to a very keen dance at the Hi gym with that popular Paul Leonard orchestra bringing an amplifier and all the trimmings.

Connie is all adither over the arrival of her good-looking big brother from Tucson.

The Lesson-Sermon includes also these words of Mary Baker Eddy from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," "I knew the Principle of all harmonious Mind-action to be God, and that cures were produced in primitive Christian healing by holy, uplifting faith; but I must know the Science of this healing, and I went my way to absolute conclusions through divine revelation, reason, and demonstration."

STUNG
The top sergeant sang out just before the company was dismissed: "All those fond of music step two paces forward."
With visions of a soft job in the regimental band, half a dozen men stepped out.
The sergeant growled: "Now then, you six mugs get busy and carry that piano up to the top floor of the officers' quarters."

COVER THOSE THIN AND BALD SPOTS WITH NEW HAIR

If your hair is getting thin, if you are already bald in spots, try the professional treatment known throughout the world as the Harper Method. This method, famous for results, is now available for home treatment. Just ask your druggist for a tube of Harper Hair Ointment—it's inexpensive—and use as directed. If your hair roots are not entirely dead, you have an excellent chance of saving the hair you now have and growing new hair on the thin and bald spots. Remember the name—Harper Hair Ointment—a tube costs but 5c (Large Size 85c).
Harper's Hair Ointment is especially recommended for dry scalp.

THE BORROWER'S Best Credential

It used to be a common practice by many borrowers to renew their loans over and over again. They paid the interest but, as they were "good for it," did not seem to think it was necessary to be in a hurry to pay the principal.

Today this practice is recognized as unsound and contrary to safe banking principles. Banks are no longer permitted to extend loans indefinitely.

A "clean slate"—all old obligations wiped off—is a borrower's best credential when seeking further credit. The most welcome borrower today is the man who not only can pay, but does pay his loans at regular intervals.

Attendance at Play Areas in Decline

While attendance at Los Angeles county play areas last month was more than 500,000 under what it was for May of 1934, attendance at Santa Monica beaches was higher last month, and Crystal lake camp was almost holding its own.

Attendance for all of the play areas last month was 1,029,334, as against 1,665,904 for May of 1934, according to James K. Reid, superintendent of the county department of recreation camps and playgrounds.

Crystal lake recreation camp in the San Gabriel mountains had an attendance of 12,630 last month, some 700 under May of 1934. Big Pines, however, had only 6915 visitors last month, approximately half of the 13,310 persons who sought recreation at the mountain playground during May a year ago.

Puddingstone reservoir had 7773

Pines, which usually is among the more popular places in the eastern part of the county. No attendance figures were listed for a year ago.

you.
